

The Morning Herald.

Saturday, Sept. 14, 1872.

No man living can tell what Horace Greeley will think, say or do next.

The national debt under Grant is being reduced at the rate of over $100 a minute.

Where is Grant's failure? Not in the currency, not in trade, not in business prosperity, not in a failure to keep the peace.

Can the Democracy be trusted to uphold legislation in which they had no hand, and which they have resisted? Guess not.

Just imagine Horace Greeley as Commander-in-Chief of the army and navy of the United States. The opposition would make a "horse laugh."

JUDGE BLACK denounces the fifteenth amendment, but supports Greeley, and Greeley says he will recognize all those that give him their support.

BUCKALEW, in company with Greeley and that impossible free-bunch cater and vagabond egotist, George Saunders, went to band egotist, George Saunders, went to Niagara to negotiate a disgraceful peace, involving the stoppage of the war, on such terms as might please Jake Thompson and Jeff Davis. Buckalew is a fraud!

The Constitution requires the President to recommend such measures as he deems good for the country, and to veto such as he thinks objectionable. Greeley, however, thinks it is his duty to declare that he will not recommend a tariff or oppose any legislation, adverse to a tariff, which Congress may propose. He says he will not interfere. Was there ever such base truckling and dictating to get office than Greeley exhibits by such a position as this. A man that will do that forfeits all respect, and is not to be trusted.

JUDGE BLACK writes to Greeley that he knew his administration would be a good and honest one because it would be subjected to the moral influence of the Democratic party. What the moral influence of the Democratic party is written in the book of Tannin, in big New York. In little York, where Judge Black lives, there were records of the "moral influence" of the Democratic party, but they are obliterated now. Democracy reigns supreme in York County, in this State, where the pure Mr. Black lives and shines. And the Democratic officials and contractors run up the debt of country from $10,000 to $30,000.

The Legislature were applied to for a committee to investigate, and the Auditor of York County "stole the vouchers" as we are told on the authority of our Secretary of State. So much for the "moral influence" of the Democratic party.

HON. DAN VODERHORN addressed a Greeley gathering at Rustville, Ind., Tuesday. During the previous night some persons stuck up posters all over the town, containing extracts from the previous speeches and letters of the "Fall Sycamore" against Mr. Greeley. Among the best of these was the following taken from his famous letter of May 18, 1872:

"No honest and intelligent Democrat can support Grant or the Greeley party. First, abandoning his principles. First, water can wash more easily and consistently together than I could become an adherent of the Greeley party. What the moral influence of the Democratic party is written in the book of Tannin, in big New York.

These extracts so embarrased Mr. Voderhorn that he was compelled to divorce his remarks to defining his own position; and as a consequence he could say nothing of H. G.

WHAT AN EX-REBEL SAYS.—In a readable letter to the Plattsburgh Sentinel a commercial traveler describes somewhat of the enthusiasm for Grant he has witnessed in the towns on the Erie, from New York to Meadville. One incident we quote: "Admirable the way you people vote for Grant. I am sure he will be a distinct man, and worthy of my own respect, for the respect of which I have given him." D. W. COOPER.

GOVERNOR CURTIN.

A Letter to his Republican Friends.

Thanking Them for the Offer of the Nomination for Congress, and Requesting that the Precious State of His Health Will not Permit His Accepting the Cold Comfort for the Grecie.

From the Beloitton Republican.

The following letter addressed to General James A. Beaver, and others named below, is from the first named general, and close the month of August, from the Republic of the United States of America, it is to be regretted that the precarious state of General Curtin's health prevents his acceptance of the nomination, as he was the unanimous choice of the people in his country, and as we are assured, of the entire district.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14, 1872.

James A. Beaver, E. C. Haines, E. H. Blanchard, James Mifflin, John F. McAllister, William C. Wilson, H. M. Youm, and others.

General—I have been so prostrated by illness since my return that I have not attempted correspondence, but I am still writing to you, and remain unanswered.

My physician, Dr. C. C. T. Allen, has advised me to remain quiet, and to rest, and to take a quiet life.

A Bucklew Demonstration.

The supporters of Bucklew assembled last evening at the Marshall Opera House and listened to addresses by Senator Bucklew, Daniel Kalbfuss and Mr. Hartley, candidate for Auditor General. Mr. Bucklew said he (Bucklew) had been chosen to bear aloft the banner of reform, and he knew that success was certain. He said he voted for every appropriation of money to the State, and to the Auditor General, and he urged the necessity of overthrowing the Senate, he said, and that the Democrats ought to support the nominees of the Baltimore Convention.

Mr. Kalbfuss made a rib-tickling speech and succeeded in keeping the audience on a periperal grin. He said if this was not a Presidential year, Hartraff would be defeated by a majority of 150,000. He made some vulgar allusions to the anatomical construction of Hartraff's face, and seemed to think that the election was going to turn on that. He proposed a resolution in the Pittsburgh Convention of the Republican and Socialist parties, and then retired in party and order. He was followed by Mr. Hartley, who spoke for a moment or two, after which the meeting adjourned.

An Apology to Mr. Bourke.

Editor Herald:

The article having appeared in yesterday morning's Courier, stating that Patrick Buckley's name had appeared in the HERALD among the list of soldiers going to Pittsburgh, and had been placed there without his sanction, I beg leave to offer an apology to Mr. Bourke for placing his name on the list.
